MISCELLANEOUS READING. THE NEW EXCAVATIONS AT ROME. The following extract from a letter written in Rome to a gentleman in this city will be

"There is a good deal of interest excited here just now by the discovery of some very remarkable remains of old Rome, outside the port of St. Giovanni, about ten miles from the gate. Among them are the foundations and fragments of a basilica said to have been dedicated to St. Stephen, and a great number of timbs, many of which are in an extraordinary state of preservation, and exhibit a style of decoration far surpassing anything I have yet seen of the kind. The stucces and paintings, are in far better condition than those of the loggia of Raphael in the Vatican, in fact, scarcely injured in any respect by either time or damptness .--One of the tombs was found entirely clear of rubbish, except about the entrance, and has remained actually hermetically sealed, from all appearances, from the time of its completion to the present, and being situated on elevated ground, and covered up with loose soil and rubbish, its preservation has been wonderfully perfect. The excavations are still going on, and the interest felt therein is evidenced by the crowds of every class of society that are constantly gathered about them. As yet, I have not been able to ascertain the opinions of the Savans in relation to these discoveries, but as the Pope has taken the matter in hand, and the ground in which they have been made is, as I understand, the property of the Barberini family, and artists are busily engaged in making drawings of every interesting object as discovered, we shall have ample light upon the subject .-The discoveries already made have excited an intense interest, curiosity, and anticipation of further developments of the long undisturbed resting places of the dead of ages

An establishment is projected in Paris for the purpose of enabling any individuals, by the annual payment of 7007. (less than $30) to enjoy all the luxuries of social, with all the independence of domestic life. For this sum they are to have board, lodging, clothes, and washing; the use of a library, the daily papers, billiards, baths, and a carriage for exercise. The whole is to be under the management of a committee chosen by themselves. The prospectus even holds out temptation to free admission to the theatres.

A French lady of great personal attractions living near Paris, was awakened the other night by hearing some one in her bedroom. He attempted to stifle her cries, but she made stout resistance, and in the contest tore a button from his coat. It was a family livery button, and served to identify her assailant as her own coachman, who professed to be HILL, BROWN & PARTLOW, corner of Prince | desperately in love with his mistress.
